To judge by the latest news with regard t the currency question, its appears that it will form a notable illustration of the fact that the simplest remedies are often those which are last thought of. For years we have been puzzling ourselves as to how a remedy could be found for the great annoyance of chop dollars, and a no less elaborate scheme than that of the establishment of a local mint was hit upon as appropriate, after that had proved ineffective, it was thought that there was actually nothing to be done, but to put up with the inconvenience. To a considerable extent the ehop dollar nuisance has been mitigated by the issue of the Dollar Notes, but this has not done away with the want of a sound and reliable currency not only for Colonial requirements but also for the China Trade generally. This point was brought prominently forward at the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce with reference to intraducing the American Trade Dollar and the Japanese Yen; and by good fortune a much better and simpler scheme was suggested in the course of the discussion, namely, supplying a suitable coin for the Colony minted at home.

It is satisfactory to notice from the letter of the Colonial-Secretary read at the meeting -of-the-Chamber-of Commerce on Tuesday. that this scheme has been well backed up by the local Government. Mr. Austin says that date consisted of 4,312 chests Patna, and for him being mail day that Mr. G. Maole n taken them from there in that state in a bout. that H. E. the Governor would not fail to 1,661 chests Benares; total 5,976 chests. draw the attention of the Secretary or STATE to Mr. WHITTALL'S resolution in favour of the coinage at home of a dollar suitable for this Colony-and it may be hoped this indicates that the suggestion will be recommended as a feasible one, and as being likely to prove advantageous. As mentioned yesterday, information has been received here that there will not be any difficulty in producing a dollar in Calcutta, 26th September. and should the Home Government not object to this plan, there are many reasons in its favour, and only one so far as we are informed, against it. The adventages which would be gained by having a coin minted in Calcutta are efficiency in coinage, and proximity in the source of supply; but against bouse. these has to be placed a possible disadvanfinest cast and most accurate coins in the prisoner was removed from the Court in tears, of the Victoria was in the Buperintendent book. necessary to obtain rollable opinions from Bankers and others versed in the question as to the exact bearing of this point; but there is one consideration, which would seem primafacie to be likely considerably to modify the bearing of the question as it appears at first. Assuming that the silver for the coins has in the main to be obtained in London, it will have to be conveyed thence to China whether it is coined at home or in Calcutta, and it will with, and on the consent of the clerk of the be states, in miligation of punishment, that in used as an internal medicine, but he had beard not make any material difference in its cost rang or Batavia, but plaintiff acted as agent at in the case, you were not unter a cost with doctor under arrest, then into the interior :of conveyance whether it be sent in the form these places. of bullion or of coin. If the coin be cast in London, the silver will be conveyed thence little over the cost in the cheapest market would materially exceed that of conveying it China. With he regular steamer communication now existing between Calcutta and munication to Bombay since the opening of would seem that the chief objection against place of at the Mint in London would soon right itself by the natural working of trade and of supply and demand. If this view of the subject prove correct there seems hardly any doubt that the best possible plan to adopt to supply a coin ly for the benefit of the company, and it would which exists, and properly so, in commercial deceased asked what it was, and be told him it Anthorities, and will be lighle to a fine not exfor the China Trade would be to do so by have been well, if the company had passed it, transactions. Whether the company should not charged an Indian and three Malays named so too; and, in that case, the well known tendency of the Home Government to keep all matters of importance in their own hands would probably make them disposed to complete the arrangements with the Imperial Mint, without giving the alternative of the Calcutta Mint sufficient consideration. For this reason, it would be certainly desirable that the latter project should be carefully considered, and if it turn out, as appears likely, to be feasible, it should be

ties as a scheme to be considered at the same time as the original one, and decided upon its merits. It is not impossible, however, that at the outset the requirements of com- baskets covered up under old rags, at Wanobi. The last named defendant paid the fine at merce would be best met by arrangements for striking the new coin being made at both the London and the Calcutta Mints; and in that case, if there were any material advan-

AN IMPORTANT MEDICAL QUESTION

In a capital case lately tried before the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, medical evidence was given on one side showing that it was impossible to distinguish with certainty human glood from that of a horse, and, on the other side, evidence was given showing that the difference between these two kinds of blood is distinctly revealed by the microscope. The remarkable fact here involved presents itself in the light of the investigations made by eminent men of science in Europe, and with concurrent results, showing that, though there are, beyond question, differences of size, determinable by careful micrometric measurement—the human corpuscles thus appearing to be on an average, larger than those of the horse-yet even in fresh blood, these differences have been found so slight as to be recognised only with extreme difficulty. In human blood the corpuscles are seen to vary from 8.000 to 5.000 in an inch, the average being 3,500. In horse blood the same variations exist, the average being 4,600-so that very small human corpuscles and very large horse corpuscles might be placed side by side, and found equal in size. This is in fresh blood. In dried blood the differences are almost blotted out, so that it bas been universally agreed that when blood has once become dry, it is not possible to distinguish with certainty the blood of one mammal from that of another.
